

Special Call for Papers on Behavioral Health: Abstracts Due Nov. 4, 2022

The Journal of Healthcare Management is collaborating with Healthcare Management Forum on a joint call for papers. Each is planning a special edition for November 2023 dedicated to behavioral health.

Authors are invited to submit a 200-word abstract to one journal or the other (but not both) by November 4, 2022. Abstracts should include a short overview of the proposed manuscript, the intended audience, and key messages for readers. The subject line must indicate that the abstract is intended for this special issue. Full articles will be due by June 1, 2023.

The editorial staffs of the two publications will consider original research and literature reviews covering the following topics:

- 1) The perceptions and development of emotional intelligence, the role of the education system in the development of behavioral health
- 2) Equity/access/inclusion issues related to promoting behavioral health, both from an individual and a population health perspective
- 3) Mental health and addictions, the opioid crisis (including methadone), policy implications of increasing mental health issues related to COVID-19
- 4) Licensing and certifying specialists such as behavioral analysts
- 5) Designing collaborative organizations and work relationships
- 6) Stress and workplace violence as well as innovations in workplace wellness in healthcare
- 7) Moral distress/injury as a precursor to burnout
- 8) Collaborative approaches with Indigenous healers, both for American Indians and Indigenous Canadians
- 9) Behavioral health in long-term care for residents and staff
- 10) The use of technologies to promote behavioral health, with an emphasis on populations with access to care issues

Abstracts and questions for the Journal of Healthcare Management can be sent by November 4, 2022, to jpixler@ache.org.
